THE GOEBEL BILL.

Receives a Solar Plexus Blow
Last Night By the Failure of the Democratic Caucus.

Conservative Democrats Who Know the Bill Is Loaded Refused to Attend Its Promoters Alarmed.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 19.—The opposition to the Goebel bill is gaining strength and the prospects for its defeat are now good. A call has been issued by the opponents of the bill signed by forty one members of the house for a caucus on the bill Wednesday afternoon.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 19.—It is believed that the governor will veto the Associated Press bill.

Congressman John then spoke to-day in the house.

Frankfort, Feb. 19.—Within one of half the democratic members of the general assembly last night refused to attend the caucus called for the consideration of the Goebel election force bill, which had already passed the senate, which the dissenters claim they sought to force the house democrats to vote for. The bill, which has been growing intensely for several days, has come to involve nearly every democratic leader in the senate, as well as the next race for governor and United States senator. Ex Senator Blackburn arrived last night, presumably in the interest of the measure. Goebel, his supposed preference for governor, is the author of the bill and chairman of the caucus. State Chairman Johnston, Senator Bronston, Gen. P. Watt Hardin, who are among the other prospective candidates for governor, are lending the revolt against the bill. When it was discovered that only 53 out of 102 democrats of both houses were present, the bill was cleared and the friends of the bill went into executive session, the result of which they refuse to make public. Opinion is about equally divided as to whether the bill can now be forced through the house. There is equal division of opinion as to what the result will be if it is.

The candy putting that was to have been given by the Young Ladies' society of the First Baptist church to-night has been postponed until next week, the day will be announced later.

Dainty Odors...

How much we appreciate the dainty odors of flowers at this season! It isn't for all of us, however, to enjoy them as fragrant from nature's censers; but there is always the kind created by perfume—sweet fragrance cast in glass.

HER WORK OVER.

Death Ends the Suffering of Miss Frances Willard—Had Been Ill Some Time.

Was Probably the Best Known
Woman in America—Her
Efforts for the W.
C. T. U.

New York, Feb. 19.—Miss Frances E. Willard, president of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, died shortly after midnight yesterday morning at the Hotel Empire, this city. At the bedside of death was her niece, Mrs. W. W. Baldwin, Mrs. L. M. Stevens, vice president of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union; Miss Anna M. Gordon, Miss Willard's secretary, and Dr. Alfred K. Hill.

Miss Willard had been ill for about three weeks. Dr. Hill made the following statement:

"Miss Willard had suffered some years with profound anemia, and on several occasions had been given up to die. Last summer she seemed to take on a new lease of life and gained in weight and strength so that she went through her convention work at Toronto and Buffalo, which was most arduous, and came out much better than was expected, but on her arrival here five weeks ago she was much prostrated and readily took the grip, which attacked the stomach, liver, intestines and later the nervous system. The disease progressed favorably, and in many respects she had much improved, when the fatal issue came and overwhelmed the nerve centers. There was no cancerous degeneration of any organ as has been stated."

There will be funeral services in New York city and later in Evansville, Ill., Miss Willard's home, where the body will be taken.

Torpedo Effects Unlike the Wreck of the Maine.

Washington, Feb. 19.—The opinion of one of the leading experts in the use of high explosives, Prof. Alger of the ordnance bureau, as to the cause of the explosion is as follows:

"As to the question of the cause of the Maine's explosion, we know that no torpedo such as is known to me in warfare can of itself cause an explosion of the character of that on board the Maine. We know of no instances where the explosion of a torpedo or mine under a ship's bottom has exploded the magazine within. It has simply torn a great hole in the side or bottom through which the ship sank. Magazine explosions on the contrary produce effects exactly similar to the effects of the explosion on board the Maine."

"When it comes to seeking the cause of the explosion of the Maine's magazine, we should naturally look not for improbable or unusual causes, but those against which we have had to guard against in the past. The most common of those is through fire in the bunkers."

"Many of our ships have been in danger at various times from this cause, and not long ago a fire in the Cincinnati's bunkers actually set fire to fittings, wooden boxes, etc., within the magazine, and had it not been discovered at the time it was it would doubtless have resulted in a catastrophe on board that ship similar to the one on the Maine."

"I shall again emphasize the fact that no torpedo exploded without a ship has ever produced, or according to our knowledge can produce, an explosion of a magazine within."

The young society men of Paducah will give a dance Tuesday night at the Palmer house. This will be the last dance for several weeks, owing to Lent, which begins Wednesday, and a large attendance is expected.

aster to the Battleship Maine.

McKinley Will Refuse to Allow
Spain to Join in the Investigation With Us—Nothing Else New.

Washington, Feb. 19.—The naval court to investigate the loss of the Maine convenes Monday. President McKinley has positively refused to allow Spain to join in the investigation with us, but the inquiry will be conducted alone. There are no developments as to the cause of the disaster.

THE PRESIDENT'S BELIEF.

Reviews His Declaration That the Maine Was Destroyed by Accident.

Washington, Feb. 19.—The president and cabinet were in council yesterday. The statement is given out that they have no doubt the Maine disaster was the result of accident purely, and such as might happen at any time.

This view of the matter will not influence the president to stop short of a most searching investigation into all facts that may have any possible bearing upon the case.

Until facts are shown to the contrary, the president will assume that the explosion was from within.

No information is obtainable here as to the report that Spain will insist on being represented in the investigation made by divers who explore the Maine's wreckage.

Cabinet members decline to discuss it at this stage.

The result of the investigation is awaited with much anxiety, and the gravity of the situation is reflected in the manner of the president and his advisers.

SENATOR GOLDBECK wants his Election Commission bill passed because he expects to be the next Democratic candidate for Governor, and he hopes to make his nomination equivalent to an election. He also knows that the sound money men in the state are in the majority, and hence the silver minority will need a force bill to help them out.

THE INDUSTRIES of the country, the most significant fact is that in different branches there are constant accounts of additional works starting, some only after a few months' or a year's rest, but others which have been idle for several years, and one for twelve years. With new machines or new owners old works are rapidly put in shape to meet a new demand. This appears not only in textile works, where a few are changing from cotton to silk or linen, but even in iron and steel, notwithstanding the present enormous production and current low prices. In the cotton workers' strike no change appears, except that demands for further legislation against mill owners are made in legislatures.—Dun's Review.

ONE BY ONE the "statesmen out of a job" find employment in the interests of the silver syndicate which is seeking to force its wares upon the people of the United States, even at the cost of national honor and the destruction of national finance. Senator DuBois is the last addition to the band of "silver missionaries" who are traversing the country in the interests of this enormous trust, having recently visited Washington for the purposes of developing certain schemes in this interest. Bryan, Warner, Towne and DuBois, and a large number of lesser lights, whose people grew tired of them in Congress, are now apparently devoting themselves to this "lost cause" in a manner which justifies the suspicion that the silver trust has put several new bars on tap.

Resolved, That this league of Republican clubs of Oregon cordially reaffirms and approves its belief in the financial plank of the last Republican National Convention; and be it further

Resolved, That we accept and approve the speech of President McKinley at New York, January 27, 1893, as the correct exposition of this plank and the monetary policy of the Republican party.

Resolved, That we are in special accord with the administration and its wise and efficient Secretary of the Treasury, Lyman J. Gage, in their efforts to resist silver monometalism and give additional strength to our present financial system.

This declaration of principles is especially interesting from the fact that the congressional elections in Oregon are to be held in June, and in order that the people of that state and the whole country may know just where they stand on the currency and financial questions, the Republicans of that state four months before the struggle at the polls, have declared their position and boldly announced their line of battle to the enemy.

Good old McKinley receipts are likely to be the rule in the Treasury Department again. Treasury officials now feel confident that the receipts for the month will surpass those of any February since the McKinley law was in operation and supplying sufficient funds to meet the expenditures of the Department. The receipts during the first half of February were a little over a million dollars a day, including Sundays, and it is expected will reach $29,000,000 for the month, which will be nearly 25 per cent in excess of average February receipts during the operation of the Wilson law, and will just about

FLORIDA'S POCAHONTAS.

Whenever the history of America is read there the story of Pocahontas is known. The romance is most captivating, and some of Virginia's most honored sons trace back a lineage to this daughter of the forest. But the historic fact that a similar scene was enacted in Tampa, Fla., three quarters of a century before the name of Pocahontas was ever heard by English lips is not known to even many Floridians. It was there in 1528, twenty years before De Soto landed at Tampa Bay, Juan Arze, a Spanish youth of 18, having been captured at Clear Water, was brought before Hirrlingua, the stern Indian chief, in whose breast was rankling a vengeance born of the ill treatment of his mother by the followers of the ill-fated Narvaez. Arze was young and fair, but the cruel chief had given the orders and had erected a grid iron of poles, on which young Arze was to be bound and stretched to meet the demands of a human sacrifice. The torch was being applied, the crackling flames began to gather strength for a human holocaust. When the stern chief's daughter threw herself at her father's feet and interposed in Arze's behalf. Her beauty rivaled that of the historic dame, whose heavenly charms kept Troy and Greece ten years in arms. The soft language of her soul flowed from her never silent eyes as she looked up through her tears of sympathy imploring the life of the young Spaniard.

Those tears, the ever ready weapon of woman's weakness, touched the heart of even the savage chief, and Arze was for the time spared.

But the demon of evil in a few months again took possession of Hirrlingua, and his daughter saw that even her entreaties would be unavailing. She was betrothed to Micoso, the young chief of a neighboring tribe. Their love had been plighted; that God-given love that rules the savage breast.

Her loving heart told her that Arze would be safe in Micoso's keeping. At the dead hour of night she accompanied him beyond danger and placed in his hands such tokens as Micoso would recognize.

"She acted none too soon. As the sun rose its rays fell upon the undenied chief calling in vain for the intended victim of his vengeance. His rage was such that it dried up the well springs of parental affection and he refused the marriage of his daughter unless Arze was surrendered. But the Indian girl, although it broke the heart-strings of hope, sacrificed her love to humanity and Micoso sacrificed his life upon the altar of honor.

Arze lived to welcome the last.

FATLESS SET OF TEETH.

Mme. K. a once noted Russian beauty was famous for the length and sumptuousness of her trains. She was also lavish of her smiles. One evening at some grand reception, I was gazing at her as Count Horace de Chosseul led her through a suite of salons. Dr. Evans came up to me. We talked about the sumptuous train. He then asked: "What do you think of her teeth?" They light up her face like sunbeams; they eclipse even the pearls of Mme. de Rothschild's necklace. "It was I who provided them," said the Doctor. "No, I'm not joking." "But surely they are too transparent to be of composition?" "They are not of artificial stuff. I chose teeth from the mouth of twelve Brittany girls to make the set."
